REPORT OF LIBRARY TRUSTEES.

For the second time since the establishment of the library in the new and handsome structure provided through the kindly interest and munificence of Josiah Carpenter, the trustees of the institution respectfully submit their annual report.

The interest and patronage of the general public in the library, which was so marked at the time it was opened for the circulation of books, in October, 1901, has continued to date, and the past year has been a most successful one in library work.

As evidence of the extent that the privileges of the institution have been enjoyed, it may be stated that among the 225 town libraries in the state, only seven report a larger circulation. Those libraries which have reported a larger loan of books are in towns which have a population much greater than Pittsfield, and thousands of more books upon their shelves. With so large a demand for the literature of the institution, it is readily seen that it is already an important factor in promoting the refinement and intellectual attainments of the community and therefore emphasizes a liberal policy on the part of the town by generous appropriations for its support.

During the past year 162 new books have been added by purchase from town appropriations and the proceeds of a benefit concert, and 53 volumes by donations from interested persons. Upon the reading tables have been placed each month a score of the leading periodicals and magazines. No literature in the building has been more generally inspected and read. No reading matter could be placed before all classes of readers that is more elevating or instructive and the tone of which is of a higher standard of excellence.

One of the most important factors in connection with the work of the library is the extension of its privileges with the work of the public schools. Such influence has gained more of a foothold the past year than ever before, and it is most desirable that it should be cultivated to the fullest possible extent by both teachers and pupils.

School teaching is now marked as one of the leading professions and the books of a library should be used by teachers as tools of their profession. So, too, should they be used by pupils as an auxiliary of text book studies pursued in the school room. While the local institution is handicapped in meeting all demands now made upon it as an auxiliary of school work, by not having a more extensive collection of volumes that could be used for such purposes, the lack can be fully met through arrangements which have been made with the officials of the state library at Concord. By such arrangements any pupil, or person in town, desiring one or more volumes from that institution, can secure them by making application to the local library. The only expense to the borrower is that of transportation charges. Applications are now frequently made for such services. Within the past few days a score of books have been obtained from such a source for use of pupils in the schools here. It is the desire of the local library officials, as well as those of the state institution, to extend such privileges, and the general public is requested to make application for any books desired.

If due heed is given the above suggestions the time is not far distant when it can be said that the most important developments of the year, relative to library interests, is its extension of work with the public schools of town.

REPORT OF SCHOOL BOARD.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF SELECTMEN.

The officials of the Pittsfield school district herewith submit their annual report of the schools for the year ending Feb. 15, 1903, together with the report of the superintendent of schools:

In the annexed report of the superintendent is found a clear and comprehensive statement of the operation and progress of the schools of the town for the past year. It is not necessary, therefore, for this report to review the work of the schools, and attention only will be given to statistical and financial matters. An attempt has been made to place such important interests before the citizens and tax payers of the district in such a manner that they may be easily and clearly understood, and careful attention is invited to the consideration of the annexed statistical and financial tables.

SUPERINTENDENT.

At the annual meeting, June last, of the joint committee, comprising the school boards of the Pittsfield-Pembroke supervisory school district, it was voted to continue the union of the two towns for another year and Mr. Frank H. Benedict was unanimously elected as superintendent of schools in the district for the ensuing year. In him the committee find that they have a man who has the interest of the schools at heart, and that he has labored successfully to raise the standard of instruction. Progressive in his ideas, he has been untiring in his efforts to promote the interests of the schools of town. Mr. Benedict has so conducted the affairs connected with his office, by keeping data concerning the schools, which enables the board, or any citizen, to ascertain at once any facts they desire. In their report one year ago the board unhesitatingly affirmed that the work of the superintendent was of great benefit to the work of the schools. After another year's trial of the present system of supervision, and a close observance of all that has been accomplished, there seems to be no good reason for a change of opinion. It would seem most unwise to conduct the operations of the schools without trained and intelligent supervision, and by one who shall give his time and best efforts to the interests of the schools, continually devising means for their improvement so that there may be adequate returns for what is expended.

TEACHERS.

The teachers have generally shown a spirit of progress that calls for warm words of commendation. Their work in the school room has been characterized by zeal and effort to accomplish all results that could be reasonably expected. That the past year has been a most successful one in all departments is due primarily to their earnest and painstaking efforts. The school board herewith tenders to them their thanks for the willing spirit and untiring zeal always manifested by all teachers to accomplish all that has been required of them.

REPAIRS.

During the past year far more extensive repairs and permanent improvements have been made upon school buildings and grounds than for many previous years. In this department of school affairs is found a large item in the list of expenditures, and for which no special appropriation was asked at the last annual school meeting. Nothing has been done, however, for which there did not seem to be an imperative necessity for some action. The school building at the Upper City has been newly covered with cedar shingles, and the building at Jenness pond treated to two coats of paint inside and out. At the Brick primary building a new piazza and entryway was built and extensive grading done upon the grounds. At the grammar school grounds a new division wire fence has been put up from Main to Mill street, and across the grounds at the front and rear of the lot. This was done at a cost to the district of $73, for which no special appropriation was made.

Among the repairs which call for immediate attention is the painting of school buildings at South Pittsfield, Tilton Hill and in the Ring district. The walls and overhead ceilings at the grammar school building must be treated to a coat of paint or kalsomine. Beyond these there does not appear to be any need of great expense for repairs. It is proper to mention, in connection with the repairs at the Brick primary school building, that two residents of that locality, B. M. Tilton and Thomas P. Tuck, contributed $5 each toward lessening the expense incurred.

EXPENDITURES.

The expenditures for school purposes the past year, as well as the previous one, have been larger than for preceding years. This is not due to any needless expense in the ordinary affairs of the schools. As a matter of fact the expense in this direction has been smaller than usual. This is due to the fact that the item of expense for books is some $225 less than for the previous year. So, too, was there less expenditure in the items of incidentals and supplies. So long as a superintendent is employed there must necessarily be a larger expenditure in the ordinary running expenses of the schools. Of the item of $475, for his salary the present year, the state has paid the district $250. Therefore, only $225 has been paid from the school funds. An examination of the annexed financial statement will show that the increase has come almost wholly from the items of expense for special repairs and permanent improvements and the item of insurance. To this must be added an item of $80 for rent of the Academy building. The full year's rent is not usually paid until the end of the year which falls on July 1. Therefore, when that date arrives this year there will be only $120 to be paid instead of $200, as heretofore. Notwithstanding the increase of expenditures it is not necessary for a larger appropriation to be made at the coming annual town meeting. The usual appropriation of $6000 with receipts from other sources will amply meet all the expenses necessary for the current year. Where the extra receipts are to come from will be seen from an inspection of the financial report.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

TO THE HONORABLE SCHOOL BOARD OF PITTSFIELD

The second annual report of your superintendent is herewith submitted:

One year ago you were watching your schools in order to ascertain whether the benefits to be derived from a system of supervision would prove equivalent to the additional tax burden that must be sustained to support it. At that time all innovations were considered with hope, and any misgivings that you may have entertained were loyally kept in the shadow. Today, after a trial of five terms, there can no longer be any doubt as to the merits and demerits of having some one directing and responsible for the work of the children from the first day to the last of their school life.

The work of this year is giving to a considerable extent the two results for which I have labored—advance work more thoroughly accomplished. The causes for this change in the three lower grades are the improvement in methods of instruction, the use of a greater variety of school supplies, the arranging of work so as to prepare for future instruction and because of the fact that these classes have not been as large as heretofore. The advancement in the upper grades is not as marked, but of a character that will be lasting, for we have endeavored to do more than teach thoroughly the work of each year by giving the scholars glimpses of what lies before them, thus leading them to think that each principle under consideration is only aid to future study.

The struggle in the rural schools has been to secure thoroughness. I believe the teachers understand the value of this, and I trust that parents begin to see that the mental processes of children cannot be forced to a degree where activity ceases with profit. To be more explicit as to this growth, which has been claimed for our schools, let us compare the first grade work of this year with that of last. We shall have accomplished more at the end of the present term in all classes than we had last year at the closing of the June term. Three primers and one first reader will stand completed at the closing of the year, against two primers only and a few pages of a first reader. We are now working the first division in the number sixteen, while June of last year found us promoting the class with only the number fifteen fairly well begun. There is also great improvement in writing.

I might make nearly as favorable comparisons in all the grades, but I will confine myself to this one and the sixth and seventh. In these classes we shall be as far advanced at the close of the winter term in language, arithmetic and history as we were at the close of the year last June. This has been done more thoroughly and with greater ease than last year and we have yet another term for a little more advance work and much reviewing.

Whatever there is in the work of the past weeks that is worthy of commendation and is proving beneficial, the schools themselves will bear witness, and I leave the matter to your judgement, knowing that it will be just.

Excluding all holidays and institute recesses I have passed ninety days in the schools of Pittsfield and eighty-five in those of Pembroke. This difference comes about through the longer High school year. The average time devoted to each school is six and three-sevenths days. Of this time the rural schools have received rather more than their share. I have justified myself in this because of the fact that the mixed school offers the most perplexing problems to teacher and superintendent.

This accounts only for the actual hours spent in the different school rooms. The time devoted to study and reading along school lines, the consideration of the many text books sent me by publishing houses, looking toward our future needs and growth, the energy expended in finding some means to arouse a class or an individual to action I cannot measure. Some little time was gratuitously given to the seniors of last year to prepare them for graduation and I have devoted three or more hours each week to those High school pupils who have wished to pursue the study of vocal expression and could arrange for the class conferences outside of regular sessions.

At least once a month each class has been before me for recitation, and in the upper grades I have set two written examinations a term, the questions so worded as not only to test the memory, but the growth in reasoning power. By thus conducting the work I have been able to come into close touch with the work of each class and for the most part with every individual.

The average attendance for the year in the rural schools is fifty-three and five-tenths, making the percentage 84.6. The village registers show a daily attendance of two hundred twenty-three and three-tenths, with a percentage of 83.9, while the attendance at the High is seventy-four and two-tenths, with a percentage of 90. This makes the average daily attendance for the town, three hundred sixty and four-tenths, the percentage being 86.1.

I leave it to you whether this is good or bad. You recognize the fact that a teacher should not be held responsible for that which a pupil does not know when that child has been absent many days; nor is it the fault of the school management when such scholars fail to be promoted. Promotion should be earned by faithful work, work that has been accomplished at sometime, if not under the teacher's supervision.

You have employed twenty different teachers during the year. The percentage of change is twenty-two and two-ninths with no changes in the village department.

This is as it should be whenever possible, for the work of a true teacher becomes more valuable with experience in the same school.

Twenty-four pupils graduated from the grammar grades, two were from the "Upper City" school and two from "Jenness Pond." Twenty-one of these entered the Pittsfield High and one the Concord High. Only two of these have left the work. This speaks for itself of the sentiment in town toward more than a common school education.

The High school graduated ten. Only one of these entered college. Three returned to us this fall for graduate work, but only one now remains. Three who were pursuing graduate courses last year on account of changes in the school curriculum are in college. The reports from these four boys are encouraging, yet we must do better for those who are to follow them if our duty is done to all who come to us for instruction and development.

In general I can report that the schools have been in good hands. Teachers have worked earnestly and faithfully. They have given hearty support to the efforts to improve the schools. None of them are above criticism and for that matter human effort never attains this distinction.

You are to be congratulated upon your success in securing and retaining the present efficient corps of teachers at the High school. Under the management of Principal Page the school has attained a proficiency far exceeding my fondest dreams one year ago. It not only is in a good condition but promises much improvement in the following years. The pupils are placed on their own resources as far as possible, seem happy, and expect to be diligent while school is in session. There is much in the work that goes to develop men and women of character aside from the scholastic attainments. The high school teachers have been assisted in their efforts by the support you have given them; by the support of the trustees of the Academy who have come to the rescue of the work in physics. The placing of the stove in the upper hall, making individual experiments in physics possible, and the construction of the physical cabinet in the recitation room on the first floor were much needed and are duly appreciated.

There are several things that our schools need but each year brings its share and so I will mention but one. It is inexpensive but indispensable if the best is accomplished. That is the co-operation of parents in securing a part of the five school days for home study and reading. This is as much a part of the grammar grade or High school pupil's duty as attending the sessions. Without it there will always be a great lack felt in our work. Teachers know which pupil is working at home.

There is a mad rush, at present, among educators to hustle children through school courses. There are advantages in this, but the matter may be, and is likely to be, pressed too far. Children of twelve to sixteen years of age cannot grasp principles with those of eighteen and over. The demand of parents and the world at large is to get the boys and girls out of school at the earliest day. Herein lies a part of the cause for the complaint that we are trying to do too much, and that children go from us with no power to act. Only sixteen of the eighty pupils in the High school are over seventeen. The percentage is far too small considering the diversity there is in mental development of children of the same age.

Although I am somewhat conservative in regard to the rushing of pupils, yet I have given much thought to a system of promotion twice yearly. The conditions that have led me to do this arise from the fact that children differ so widely in their growth in a half year. About half of each class might advance at the end of the first half year, while the others must be drilled or chaos would follow. Now, if the slower ones of a class could be placed with the brighter ones of the division below it would be for the advantage of all concerned. Under the present circumstances I have not formulated a complete plan for such segregation of pupils, but I believe that it will follow the work and study of our combined efforts.

In closing I urge every parent at least to visit the school of his vicinity so that each may know for what the school moneys of the town are expended and what return is given on the investment to the future citizens of the state and country.

FRANK HOWE BENEDICT, SUPT.

Tree Wardens' Report.

The legislature of 1901 passed an act requiring mayors of cities and selectmen of towns, to appoint one or more tree wardens, persons interested in the planting, pruning and preservation of shade and ornamental trees in public ways and grounds, and giving towns and cities control of all such trees situated in any public way or ground within their limits. Also allowing towns and cities to annually appropriate money, not exceeding, in the aggregate, fifty cents for each of their votable polls in the preceding year, to be used by the tree wardens in planting, pruning, protecting, and whenever necessary, acquire shade and ornamental trees, within the limits of their public ways and grounds.—See Chapter 98, Laws of 1901.

In accordance with this act the subscribers were appointed tree wardens, and at once entered upon their duties. Realizing the indebtedness of our town, and desiring to put it to as little expense as possible your tree wardens have made no charge for their services, and hope that what they have done will meet with the approval of all citizens who are interested in making our town attractive and beautiful, and thus draw visitors from the cities to spend their summers with us. Other towns in the state are awakening to this idea, and trees and shrubs are being planted, parks improved, and new ones created. In many towns Out-Door Art clubs are being formed solely for this very purpose. A general interest among all of our residents is noticeable. Owing to the expense which would necessarily be incurred, your tree wardens have not done as much as they would have liked to, but they have spiked some 300 trees. We have removed many signs and advertisements from the trees, and have secured the hearty approval and co-operation of the residents along the highways where our shade trees have been so defaced. We would like to incorporate in our report several suggestions, but lack of time and space prevents us. One thing we would like to call attention to is this: Many persons, and more especially among the farmers of our town we have noticed, that in putting up barbed wire they have encircled many trees within the limits of the highways instead of putting down posts. Now this is all wrong, and the tree wardens will have to remove the wire, in these instances, the coming year. Several trees have already been spoiled and will have to be cut down. Quite a number of trees remain to be spiked and a number of signs to be removed, also trees to be planted, especially in the Academy Park where a few dead trees have been removed.

Respectfully submitted,

FRANK S. JENKINS, } TREE
FRANK D. OSGOOD, } WARDENS.

JOHN A. GOSS, TOWN TREASURER.
B. 1847—D. 1903.

In Memoriam.

JOHN A. GOSS, TOWN TREASURER,
and one of this town's most prominent and influential citizens, died February 3, 1903, in the prime of life, aged 55 years.

Although born in the neighboring town of Epsom, he may well be claimed by Pittsfield, where his energy has been felt in many directions for twenty-seven years.
The pleasant and commodious Opera House stands as a monument to his memory, and all village improvements, business enterprises, and every progressive movement have found in him an enthusiastic helper.

Twenty-seven years cashier of the National Bank, nineteen years treasurer of the Farmers' Savings Bank,
ten years he has served as town treasurer, school treasurer; treasurer of Aqueduct and Gas Companies from their organization, making him as familiar with the money matters of the town as with the faces of its people.

In 1893 he was elected representative, and while serving in that capacity, was honored by being chosen from the House to accompany the State's Representatives to the World's Fair.

In politics he was a Democrat, and in his party, no less than by the working class in general, he will be greatly missed, as are all public men who have helped in building up the community.
